HRIS Solutions for Small to Mid-size Companies

Small to Mid-Size Companies:

Automate your recruiting process by using the Online Employment Application software and HRSource™ HRIS

The hiring process can take up a lot of your HR department's time as it processes job application forms, enters data into the system and forwards job applications to the right manager. This time -consuming process can tax your limited HR resources and slow down the entire hiring process. Any delays cost your firm money as important positions remain vacant or can result in loosing valuable candidates.

Speed up your recruiting and hiring process by using an HRIS that includes a web-based job application module. These programs automate parts of the recruiting process, reducing the time and steps necessary to identify the best applicants and get the applications into the hands of the hiring manager. How does it work?

Online Employee Application Module

Prospective employees complete job applications at your company's website

HRSource™ HRIS

- Applicant data feeds into HRSource™ HRIS, eliminating manual processing and data entry
- HR reviews and forwards best applicants to hiring manager
- Tracks applicants' progress

Hiring Manager

Receives and can act on applications more quickly

This means applications can speed through the HR department instead of waiting to be processed... With the data already loaded into HRSource™, HR can more efficiently pass it on to the hiring manager.

Benefits to your organization?

- Reduces the time it takes to get job applicants to hiring managers
- Time saving as HR does not get tied up with forms and data entry
- Accurate data as the job applicant enters his/her own information and assumes responsibility for its correctness
- Paperwork reduction
- Recruiters & managers can open new positions online (and close them when they get filled) speeding up the posting process
- The applicant's progress can be tracked more efficiently in HRSource™.
- HRSource™ can generate the appropriate response letters
- Federal government contractors or subcontractors can more easily track applicant data for affirmative action plan (AAP) reporting.

It's time to put the data entry burden on the person who has the most at stake: the applicant. Applicants take responsibility for entering their own data, while HR focuses on the "big picture" of hiring the best talent available. Your HR staff will say "Great! One less thing to do! I like that!
